JOANNA HO BRADSHAW

WEDNESDAY, JAN 30

6:30-8:30PM

Ever feel like you could use more tools in your parenting toolbox? We all have moments when we are not at our best and have run out of ideas. Come listen to educator and mom Joanna Ho Bradshaw talk about restorative practices: what they are, why they will improve our relationships with our kids, and how to add them to our toolboxes.

Implementing "restorative practices" in our parenting means shifting away from punitive discipline and toward more healing strategies to resolve conflict, teach positive behavior through authentic consequences, and strengthen bonds.

Formerly an award-winning teacher and Dean of Students at a school in East Palo Alto, Joanna Ho Bradshaw now designs professional development materials for teachers around the world at Nearpod.

Please bring a laptop, iPad or other device to participate.

Manor Parent Ed is sponsored by the PTA. If you have any questions, topics or speakers you would like us to research, please email us at yourmanorpta@gmail.com
